#1 – Next to the statue of Charles IV

Definitely one of the most romantic places in Prague! Visiting the spot in the morning affords you the opportunity to relax with the refreshing early sunrays covering Prague Castle.

#2 – Charles Bridge

Charles Bridge is a clear Prague must-see. But you certainly don't want to be breaking through masses of tourists during the day, so we recommend going late at night, or, even better, early in the morning. That's the real eye candy! Spider-Man also walks here with his girlfriend in the latest Spider-Man: Far from home.

How To Dress Up For a Memorable Photoshoot

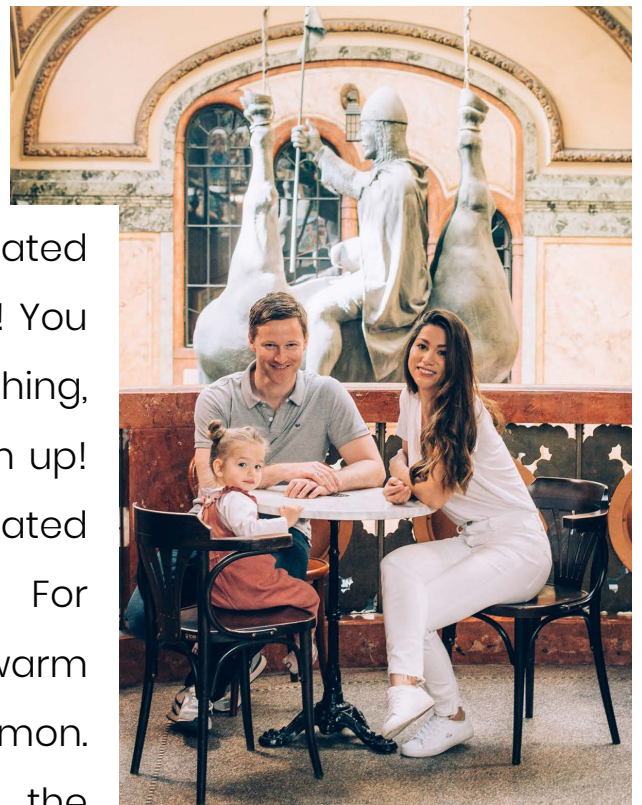

There are no rules etched in stone regarding dressing for a photoshoot. However, there are some determining factors and some tips to note. Ultimately, the kind of photoshoot you've booked determines the clothes you'll need.

Some of them are quite easy and obvious. If you booked for, say, a wedding photoshoot, of course everyone knows what's applicable. But what happens if you book a solo traveler photo shoot or a family shoot? Are you still racking your brain for answers?

Worry no more, we've got you.

Family photoshoot

For a family photoshoot, coordinated outfits are fun, flexible and amazing! You just pick 2 or 3, preferably eye-catching, colors and play with them, mix them up! That'd make everything look coordinated and natural but not uniformed. For example, you could all be wearing warm earthy tones or some color in common. That will add dimension to the photographs.

Best Places To Grab A Beer And Relax

Lokál U Bílé Kuželky

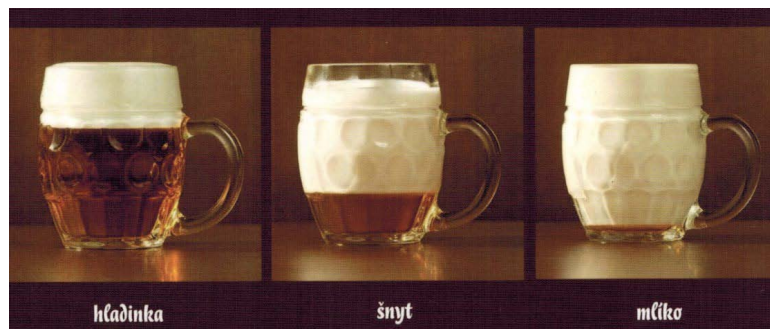

Míšeňská 66/12, 118 00 Malá Strana
<https://goo.gl/maps/FGdixCNWMwp>

Great original Czech place just next to the Charles Bridge! One of the few places where they can serve you the beer in 3 different ways!

Mlíko – beer served in a big mug with foam taking the most part of it – ideal for light drinkers!

Šnyt – small beer with the foam served in big glass – Usually served as a last jar.

Hladinka – Standard way how to serve the beer.

Typically authentic Czech cuisine inspired by the '70s and the '80s will show you restaurant how Czech people used to eat classic meals and dishes. Everything from local production. There is one more branch in Dlouhá street (yes, that Dlouhá street, with a lot of bars and clubs), which tends to be the longest pub in Prague (on the picture above). The address is Dlouhá 33, 110 00 Staré Město (<https://goo.gl/maps/tP9VFXfQUgNgIFPP9>)

Vegetarian + Vegan Restaurants

Green Factory (vegetarian)

Various locations

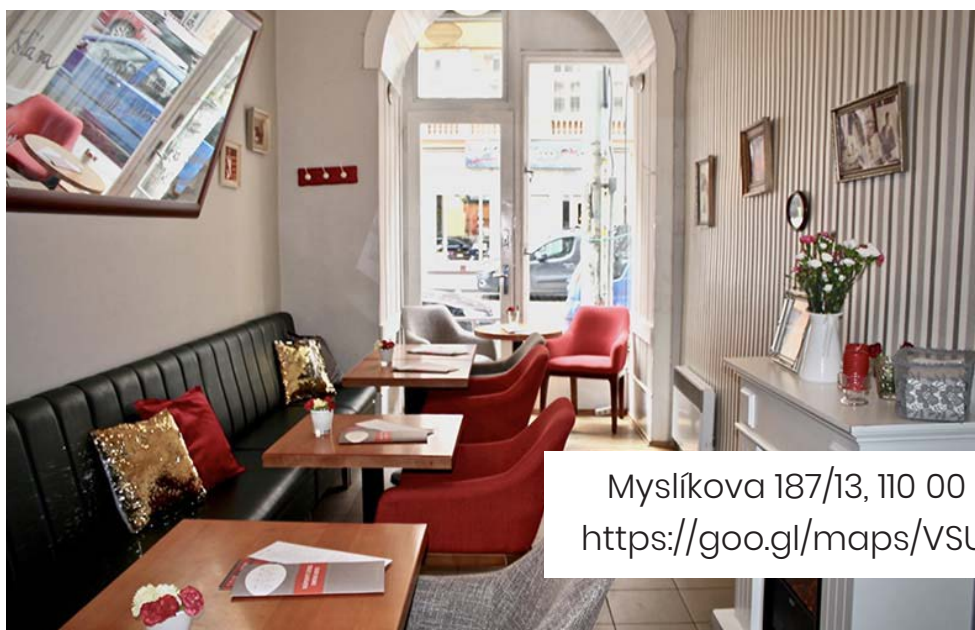

Unique concept here in Prague, where you can basically build your own salads. On your first visit to Green Factory, you might be a little surprised by the number of customers and can hardly believe they're waiting "just" for a salad. After the first bite though, you'll understand why.

Really great salads, one of the best in Prague. If you like to watch your food get prepared without getting your hands dirty, then this is your ideal choice. The opportunity to pick which ingredient goes in and which stays out is priceless. Salads are large, not ripped off. We recommend you also try soups, delicacies. We're sure you'll enjoy everything prepared in Green Factory.

Breakfast tip

Les Kamarades

Myslíkova 187/13, 110 00 Nové Město
<https://goo.gl/maps/VSUg8ADHLPK2>

One of the most amazing places to kick start your day in Prague 2. Excellent coffee, great snacks in a cozy and comfy environment. You can also get fresh bread straight from the bakery here. They serve lunch too. The nice and fast service rendered here will make you want to pay a second visit.

Ultimate Guide To Choosing FAKE CZECH Souvenirs

There are definitely lots of things that can be gotten in Czech but are not good souvenirs because they do not have Czech origin. Some others which have Czech origin have many fakes version and one should be careful with them. Russian hat, matryoshka doll, fake Bohemian Crystal...

Let's little dive in a little...

Russian hat

Yes, we do have a cold temperatures in Prague as well :-)) but this hat is originally from Russia, and was usually used in Arctic regions where they protect your ears and chin from "deep frost". Hence, it's not a very authentic souvenir to bring from Prague.

Matryoska doll

These are the sets of wooden dolls of decreasing sizes placed one inside another. The first one was made in 1890 in Russia. So, again, this is not original to Czech.

Trdelník

This is a classic story! Everyone comes to Prague and would like to take a picture with Trdelník, which is presented as typical old Bohemian pastry. Sorry, that's not true:)

Originally Trdelník is from Transylvania (Romania nowadays), where the local german-speaking has already been baking it for centuries. From there Trdelník was expanded to the borders of Czecho-Slovakia (to Skalica). Slovakia even has registered EU trademark for Trdelník from Skalica.

“Typical” bohemian Trdelník?

Our souvenir recommendation

Manufaktura

Czech food

Smažený sýr

Yes! That's just simple fried cheese! Usually comes with potatoes and tartar sauce, sometimes with a bit of vegetables (lettuce, paprika, tomatoes and cucumber).

Czech fried cheese is typically prepared with Edam, Gouda or Muenster, but it can also be prepared with Niva, the Czech version of blue cheese, or Hermelín, a Czech version of Camembert.

Although dismissed by food critics as junk food, smažený sýr remains one of the staple Czech meals both in pubs and at homes.
